IRAN SANCTIONS LIFT

1 Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei on Tuesday welcomed the lifting of international sanctions against Iran, but warned that Tehran should remain wary of its old enemy the United States. IMMIGRATION PLAN

2 The U.S. Supreme Court agreed to hear President Barack Obama's bid to resurrect his plan to shield more than 4 million illegal immigrants from deportation, a unilateral executive action he took in 2014 to bypass the Republican-led Congress. Obama's action was blocked by lower courts after Texas and 25 other Republican-governed states sued to stop it, contending he exceeded his presidential powers under the U.S. Constitution. The case will be argued before the high court in the coming months, with a ruling due by the end of June. REUTERS

Law enforcement officials investigate a bomb threat at Arlington High School. NICOLAUS CZARNECKI

Massachusetts schools threatened

More than a dozen Boston-area schools were the targets of violent threats on Tuesday, spurring lockdowns and early closures around the state.

Impacted districts in the state included Arlington, Waltham, Swampscott, Weymouth, Plymouth, Taunton, Billerica, Newton, Kingston, Ayer, Groton, Tewksbury, Salisbury and Westford, according to a list compiled by The Boston Globe.

Many of the threats were made by phone in a robotic voice, law enforcement officials said.

In Arlington, the local high school was evacuated and students were dismissed for the day early on Tuesday after officials reported a threat of a possible attack using bombs and guns, local police said.

Arlington police said on Twitter they did not regard the attack as credible but that the evacuation was carried out as a precaution. Arlington police said they later determined the threat to be "unfounded."

"Despite the fact that this was a widespread issue, we take these threats very seriously," Arlington Superintendent Kathleen Bodie said in a statement Tuesday afternoon.

Similar threats were made in at least 26 schools in New Jersey by phone starting at about 8:50 a.m. according to Bergen County Sheriff Michael Saudino, adding that the schools in that state were all subsequently given the all clear.

State police in Delaware said they were also investigating threats made by phone in a robotic or computer generated-style voice to at least three schools. METRO

Two shot at Maverick Station on Blue Line

Service was interrupted for two hours after two men were wounded by a shooter in the East Boston T stop.

SPENCER BUELL
@MetroBOS
spencer.buell@metro.us

Regular service on the Blue Line resumed in time for the evening commute Tuesday after a double shooting inside Maverick Station in East Boston.

The attack came around 2:30 p.m., when a man fired several shots inside an MBTA train following an argument, police said, according to several media outlets on scene for an afternoon press conference.

The victims were described as two men, a 29-year-old inside the train car and a 43-year-old on the subway station's platform. Their injuries weren't life-threatening, MBTA Transit PD spokesman Lt. Richard Sullivan told reporters.

"It was right when the doors opened. It was crazy. Everyone started running."

Commuters were bused as police investigate the scene at the Maverick Square Blue Line MBTA station where two people were shot on Tuesday afternoon. NICOLAUS CZARNECKI

Police continued to search for a gunman who fled the scene, Sullivan said, adding that police would be analyzing surveillance footage and following descriptions of the suspect given by commuters.

The shooting happened as the train arrived at the stop, commuter Milton Ruiz told The Boston Globe.

"It was right when the doors opened," Ruiz told the newspaper. "It was crazy. Everyone started running."

"Other people were yelling, 'Shut the door! Shut the door!'" said one witness captured in a video posted on Twitter outside the T stop.

At 2:30 p.m., the MBTA reported severe delays on the Blue Line due to police activity. The T later reported it was running shuttle buses between Airport and Bowdoin stations.

Images posted on social media showed dense crowds of people along Blue Line stops waiting to board shuttle buses.

Advocacy group TransitMatters described the situation at the State Street stop downtown as "complete overload" around 3:49 p.m.

MBTA spokesman Joe Pesaturo told Metro the victims were taken to an area hospital and that they "continue to be evaluated."

Service resumed a few minutes before 4:30 p.m., according to the MBTA.

Proposed ban on sale of very young pets

It would also hold sellers of sick young animals accountable for the medical bills.

NATE HOMAN
@MetroBOS
nate.homan@metro.us

Lawmakers will hold a hearing Thursday on a bill that would ban the sales of puppies and kittens under the age of 8 weeks and hold sellers financially accountable for sick pets.

"We had a conversation with legislators, local shelters and animal control about this bill," said Kara Holmquist, director of advocacy for the MSPCA. "Many animals bred by backyard breeders sold way too early for a quick profit."

Experts said that taking puppies and kittens away from their mothers too early causes harmful behavioral and health issues.

"Behaviorists have found that these animals learn socialization skills between 13 to 14 weeks," Holmquist said. "One example, they learn from their mothers and their littermates about bite inhibition, a mother will reprimand them if they bite too hard."

Holmquist said that they also learn frustration tolerance when competing for mother's milk, sleeping space and other interactions where restraint skills are developed. Without these, the animals are more prone to have a lack of impulse control.

"These are difficult issues to resolve," Holmquist said. "It usually requires behavior management. It's a health and welfare issue for not just the animals, but the owners and other people who come in contact with them. Those weeks of learning are a crucial window, and once it closes, it's gone."

Other issues that arise out of leaving the litter too early are health and immunity oriented.

"This is a pet shop standard already, they can't ship a dog unless it's 8 weeks old," said Alan Borgal, the director of law enforcement for the Animal Rescue League. "Generally, the ARL supports this bill because it provides a remedy to stop the sale of sick dogs and lets law enforcement go after backyard breeders."

Borgal said that a puppy taken away from its mother too early and sold on the streets don't usually have vaccines, which means the new owner could face $450 to $500 of bills at the vet.

"We have a big problem with backyard breeders, especially in the cities with bully breeds. People sell them out of cars," Borgal said. "We have cases like someone with a shopping cart trying to sell puppies at a mall, and we haven't had the ability to stop them before."

Puppies and kittens also develop immunities from their mother's milk, and are often vaccinated at 8, 12, and 16 weeks old.

"A prospective owner will want puppies who have been taken care of, and they want to make sure they aren't let out unprotected," said Cambridge Veterinary Care Practice manager Myrna Robinson-Weiner. "They are very susceptible to things like leptospirosis, a bacteria that is very dangerous for them."

The bill also calls for new regulations for a person who sells a sick puppy or kitten to help pay for the veterinarian bill.

"Puppies aren't TVs," Holmquist said. "Returning the puppies is not a desired option. They want to keep the puppy but have the pet shop pay the cost. The bill requires states to regulate larger-volume breeders better."

Landlords and renters: Who shovels what?

Children on Syrian refugee route could freeze to death

Thousands of refugee children traveling along the migration route through Turkey and southeastern Europe are at risk from a sustained spell of freezing weather in the next two weeks, the United Nations and aid agencies said on Tuesday.

The U.N. weather agency said it forecast below-normal temperatures and heavy snowfall in the next two weeks in the eastern Balkan peninsula, Turkey, the eastern Mediterranean and Syria, Lebanon, Israel and Jordan.

"Many children on the move do not have adequate clothing or access to the right nutrition," said Christophe Boulierac, spokesman for the U.N. children's agency UNICEF.

Asked if children could freeze to death, he told a news briefing: "The risk is clearly very, very high."

Children were coming ashore on the Greek island of Lesbos wearing only T-shirts and soaking wet after traveling on unseaworthy rubber dinghies, the charity Save the Children said in a statement.

"Aid workers at the border reception center in Presevo say there is six inches of snow on the ground and children are arriving with blue lips, distressed and shaking from the cold," it said.

It said temperatures were forecast to drop to -20 degrees Celsius (-4°F) in Presevo in Serbia and -13 degrees (9°F) on the Greek border with Macedonia.

Last year children accounted for a quarter of the one million migrants and refugees arriving across the Mediterranean in Europe, Boulierac said. The UN refugee agency UNHCR said a daily average of 1,708 people had arrived in Greece so far in January, just under half the December daily average of 3,508.

Islamic state media outlet confirms 'Jihadi John' is dead: SITE

A media outlet associated with Islamic State on Tuesday released a eulogy for "Jihadi John", a member of the militant group who won global notoriety for his filmed executions of hostages, the monitoring organization SITE reported.

The militant, who was identified as Mohammed Emwazi, a British citizen of Arab origin, was described in Islamic State's Dabiq magazine by his nickname in the group of "Abu Muharib al-Muhajir."

The U.S. military said in November it was "reasonably certain" it had killed him in a drone strike.

Obama to meet Michigan mayor to discuss contaminated water: White House

President Barack Obama will meet with the mayor of Flint, Michigan, on Tuesday to discuss the city's problems in dealing with lead-contaminated water, the White House said.

Obama, who Saturday ordered federal aid for state and local response efforts in Genesee County, which includes Flint, will meet with Mayor Karen Weaver, White House spokesman Josh Earnest said.

"The situation is anything but being ignored by the White House," Earnest told a news briefing at the White House.

Biden pledges faster US approval for cancer drug cocktails

Biden, who lost his 46-year-old son, Beau, to brain cancer last year, set out his plans at a World Economic Forum meeting of international experts in Davos, a week after being appointed to lead the initiative by President Barack Obama.

Vice President Joe Biden said Tuesday that the United States would speed up the approval of promising drug combinations in the government's newly announced drive to cure cancer "once and for all".

So-called combination therapy is increasingly seen as central to fighting tumors, as scientists unlock the different genetic factors driving cancer cell growth, but bringing such cocktails to market can be a slow and costly process.

Biden said he had hosted a meeting at his home with three unnamed large drug companies and the head of the Food and Drug Administration at which both sides had pledged to do more to get novel cancer drug cocktails to patients.

"The head of the FDA made a commitment that everybody would move much more rapidly in approving combinations," Biden said.

At the same, the pharmaceutical industry executives had all said they were "open to different ways of doing business" in order to ensure that promising drugs from different companies were tested together as early as possible, he added.

Cancer experts are particularly excited by the promise of immunotherapy medicines that help the body's immune system fight tumors and which have been shown to work well when used alongside other drugs.

Francis Collins, director of the National Institutes of Health, described their potential as "breath-taking."

"I'm not naive enough to think or suggest we are going to have a cure for every cancer in the world in the near term."

Biden

But such immunotherapy drugs are expensive — typically costing well over $100,000 a year per patient — and companies have traditionally been defensive about sharing early stage medical experiments.

Obama's call to "make America the country that cures cancer once and for all" in the final State of the Union address of his presidency has led to criticism from some scientists of an oversimplified approach.

The latest government-led initiative has echoes of President Richard Nixon's unsuccessful "war on cancer" in the 1970s, since scientists have discovered that cancer is hundreds of different diseases rather than one single disorder, making the notion of a single cure outdated.

Biden acknowledged the complexity in Davos.

Americans missing in Baghdad kidnapped by Iran-backed militia: Iraqi, U.S. sources

Three U.S. citizens who disappeared last week in Baghdad were kidnapped and are being held by an Iranian-backed Shi'ite militia, two Iraqi intelligence and two U.S. government sources said Tuesday. Unknown gunmen seized the three Friday from a private residence in the southeastern Dora district of Baghdad, Iraqi officials say. They are the first Americans to be abducted in Iraq since the withdrawal of U.S. troops in 2011.

The U.S. sources said Washington had no reason to believe Tehran was involved in the kidnapping and did not believe the trio were being held in Iran, which borders Iraq.

"They were abducted because they are Americans, not for personal or financial reasons," one of the Iraqi sources in Baghdad said.

The three men are employed by a small company that is doing work for General Dynamics Corp., under a larger contract with the U.S. Army, according to a source familiar with the matter.

The Iraqi government has struggled to rein in the Shi'ite militias, many of which fought the U.S. military following the 2003 invasion and have previously been accused of killing and abducting American nationals. REUTERS

Family of ex-FBI agent missing in Iran demands answers

Levinson, who disappeared while visiting Iran's Kish Island in 2007, was not among the five American prisoners released by the Iranian government.

The family of former FBI agent Robert Levinson, who went missing in Iran eight years ago, said on Tuesday it was "desperate for answers" on his whereabouts and expressed frustration at the information it had received from the Obama administration.

His family said in a statement over the weekend that they were "devastated," adding: "We are happy for the other families. But once again, Bob Levinson has been left behind."

In a speech on Sunday

Robert Levinson LEVINSON FAMILY HANDOUT

celebrating the release of the Americans, Obama said the U.S. government would "not rest" until Levinson was found. Secretary of State John Kerry said in a Twitter post that Iran had agreed to deeper coordination to locate Levinson.

Levinson's son, Dan, told CNN on Tuesday the family "can only hope that they [U.S. officials] are really doing everything they can."

He said that for years "President Obama has promised that, Secretary Kerry has promised that, but it hasn't ... given us results."

U.S. officials believe that Levinson, who suffered from diabetes, died in captivity after meeting with an American-born Islamic militant on Kish Island. Iranian officials have repeatedly denied knowledge of his disappearance or whereabouts. REUTERS

Father of victim rejects plea deal in NY church beating that killed son

A man accused of taking part in a mass church beating that killed one of his sons and injured another in upstate New York rejected a plea deal on Tuesday that would have sent him to prison for at least 18 years.

Bruce Leonard, 65, appeared in the Oneida County Courthouse in an orange prison jumpsuit and wrist and ankle shackles to turn down the plea agreement involving charges of murder, gang assault and kidnapping in the Oct. 11, 2015, attack at the Word of Life Church in Chadwicks, a small town about 100 miles west of Albany.

Leonard is accused of joining his wife and seven other church members in the beating death of his son Lucas Leonard, 19,

Bruce Leonard OBSERVER DISPATCH POOL

Another son, Christopher Leonard, 17, survived the attack but was hospitalized for blunt-force injuries suffered during a so-called counseling session that lasted more than 10 hours.

Their mother, Deborah Leonard, 59, pleaded guilty last month to first- and second-degree assault charges in exchange for her testimony against her husband and the seven others — including church pastor Tiffanie Irwin — in the fatal attack.

During testimony last October at a hearing, Christopher Leonard described his father attacking him and Lucas with his fists as well as with a black extension cord used as a whip. Christopher said he and his brother were assaulted because Lucas intended to leave the church.

The other defendants all rejected the same plea deal as Bruce Leonard. They include pastor Irwin, 29; her mother, Traci Irwin, 49; her brothers Joseph Irwin, 26, and Daniel Irwin, 24; Linda Morey, 54; her son David Morey, 26; and Sarah Ferguson, 33, a half-sister of the victims. REUTERS

Madonna fears for her life because of Sean Penn's El Chapo stunt

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

While Sean Penn has been calmly patting himself on the back for both helping to bring Joaquin "El Chapo" Guzman to justice and single-handedly saving journalism, his ex-wife — and current squeeze — Madonna has not been doing so well. Sources tell Radar Online that Madonna, who is apparently dating Penn again, fears for her life now that a connection has been drawn between the actor's October interview with the drug lord and his later capture. Because obviously. "While tough-talking Sean told her she's safe, Madonna nonetheless is living in fear," a source says. "She is furious with Sean for putting her in danger." See, I knew dating Sean Penn was a bad idea.

Here's Mel Gibson stumbling around a Whole Foods

While he seemed to be fine and dandy at the Golden Globes earlier this month — and up for making fun of himself — Mel Gibson has been showing some troubling signs of his past behavior making a comeback.

Take, for instance, this recent trip to the grocery store. I kind of don't even want to get too into the analysis of it and just give you the play-by-play from the other shoppers: "Mel went into the Whole Foods in Thousand Oaks and was stumbling around. He came in with a big white fork in his mouth and he seemed unsteady. He tripped a couple of times and he was telling people he wasn't really Mel Gibson," a source tells Radar Online. "He was extremely rude to people. He wasn't behaving politely at all and seemed unsteady. Mel went to the checkout line and tried to pay with his credit card but had to insert in three different ways for it to work. He looked like he could fall down at any moment." Fun times, Mr. Gibson. Madonna's tribute to David Bowie

It didn't take long for Madonna to work her feelings about the passing of David Bowie into her tour, as this clip from her stop in Houston shows. "I want to pay tribute to a man who inspired my career. If you haven't heard about David Bowie, then look him up, motherf—ers. He was one of the geniuses in the music industry, one of the greatest singer-songwriters of the 20th century and he changed my life when I went to see him in concert in Detroit. He showed me that it was OK to be different." She then launched into a rousing rendition of "Rebel Heart" — which makes sense, since this is her Rebel Heart tour and all.

Jon Snow's apparent death at the end of last season of "Game of Thrones" was a huge shock, and his fate is one of the big mysteries of the new season, due in April. So why do people keep asking cast members whether he's alive or dead? Do they actually expect an answer? Have they never seen a TV show before? The folks at The Upcoming apparently haven't, since they tried to get something out of Maisie Williams about it at the U.K. Critics Circle Awards. "I feel so mean because I speak to people and they're all like 'Jon Snow, is he back?'" she says. "It's a great twist, but I can't say he's going to be alive." I'm sorry people keep asking

Hey, Spike Lee and Jada Pinkett Smith, guess what? Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences president Cheryl Boone Isaacs has heard your complaints about this year's Oscar nominations and their stunning lack of diversity, and she's vowing to do something about it. Well, not about the nominees this year, per se, since that ship has sailed. But moving forward? Totally. "I am both heartbroken

We need to do more, and better and more quickly." So, is that enough to call off the boycott?

Life after Ron Weasley

Rupert Grint is in a crazy film, "Moonwalkers," that's nothing like "Harry Potter."

matt.prigge@metro.us

Rupert Grint could spend the rest of his life doing nothing. After all, the actor, now 27, devoted 13 years to playing Ron Weasley, the most flabbergasted of the "Harry Potter" films' central trio. Instead, like his co-stars Daniel Radcliffe and Emma Watson, he's kept up the acting, taking roles that are very un-Hogwarts. He's done dramas ("Cherrybomb") and a war film ("Into the White"), played punk reprobate Cheetah Chrome in "CBGB" and performed Off-Broadway in Terrence McNally's "It's Only a Play."

His new film "Moonwalkers" is also very much outside the Potter wheelhouse. Grint plays Jonny, a London rock manager in 1969 who stumbles into a plan to create a fake film of the Apollo 11 moon landing, in case the real mission is a bust. This ruse winds up involving him with orgy-loving hippies, vengeful East End gangsters and a PTSD-ridden CIA heavy played by Hellboy himself, Ron Perlman.

"It's something that doesn't take itself too seriously, which is a rare thing," he says of the sometimes hyperviolent comedy. "I wasn't sure how it would turn out.

It was a ridiculous hour-and-a-half. It does kind of slap you around in the face."

Before the "Moonwalkers" script made it to him, Grint had already been a nut for conspiracy theories, or at least reading about them. "One of my favorites is that the moon is hollow," he tells us. "NASA sent this missile up there to hit the face of the moon. The signals came back described it as ringing like a bell — like it was a hollow structure. I don't know if it's real. But it made me think."

What caused him to become an avid reader of wacky theories? "I think it was probably Princess Diana," he says, alluding to the claims made by some that her death was not an accident. A lot of these catch his fancy, some loonier than others. "There's one about a reptilian race that controls all the world's power. Every decision is made by this reptilian race. The queen is one of them. The prime minister, all the presidents — they're all reptiles."

"The people who say this are so unwavering, and you think, just a little bit, maybe they've got a point. It's just quite fun reading."

Grint points out that making "Moonwalkers" made him wonder if theories that it was staged might have a bit of a point, maybe. "The moon landing was surprisingly easy to remake," he recalls. "It's really

Rupert Grint, with Robert Sheehan, plays a lowly rock manager who finds himself helping to fake the Apollo 11 moon landing in "Moonwalkers." ALCHEMY easy to make the moon. It looks like a set. It kind of makes you think it would have been quite easy to do it, to fake it."

GETTY IMAGES

What he wants next

"Moonwalkers" is out-there, even when you're not comparing it to the "Potter" films. But Grint doesn't take roles just to shock his massive fanbase, who continues, nearly five years after the final installment, to swirl around him. (He's famous for being gracious to those who come up to him on the street.)

"There just haven't been that many wizard roles out there," he jokes. "It's nice to do something different and a bit edgy. I find that a bit exciting. I like the idea of exciting people."

He says he'd like to do something really different from Ron Weasley, though. "Something dark would be fun. Someone a bit evil. I'd enjoy that, I think," Grint says. "I think being a ginger takes away a bit of my edge."

What Alan Rickman knew about Snape

It's been a rough month for celebrity losses. For "Harry Potter" fans (and movie fans in general), the passing of Alan Rickman from cancer at the age of 69 was particularly difficult. His career as an actor was incredible, from stage to screen, from "Die Hard" to the underrated ghostly drama-romance "Truly Madly Deeply," and I've loved everything he's done.

But as a geek and a lover of all things Harry, I'll always think of him first as Professor Snape.

I think there is something that is undeniably compelling about characters that are hated or feared revealing something that makes them sympathetic. I think that's why we love them so much. We're waiting for the villain to show us their soft underbelly.

Snape had that. He loved Harry's mother Lily. It affected everything he did. It was why he protected Harry. It's why he did what he did for Dumbledore. When Snape produces his Patronus charm, and it's the same as Lily's, Dumbledore says, "After all this time?" Snape replies, "Always."

Rickman has revealed in the past that "Harry Potter" author J.K. Rowling, to convince him to take the job, gave him information about the role that no one else had. This week, she revealed what exactly she told him on Twitter. She tweeted, "I told Alan what lies behind the word 'always.'" That single word contains all the passion and goodness that Snape had to conceal until the last second, at which point one of the series' great villains turned into a truly tragic figure.

There was a quote attributed to Rickman where he says he'll be reading "Harry Potter" when he's 80 in his rocking chair, and that when his family asks, "After all this time?" he'll reply, "Always." Though there is no evidence that he actually said that, I think most of us will be doing that ourselves.

Knowing that Rickman knew Snape was in love with

'THE LADYKILLERS'

Ryan Hurst, Tom Hanks, J.K. Simmons and Tzi Ma try to rip off a casino while stationed in the home of a crotchety old woman (Irma P. Hall) in the Coen brothers' "The Ladykillers." BUENA VISTA PICTURES

The two studio comedies the Coen brothers made before 2007's "No Country for Old Men" weren't judged too kindly at the time. But 2003's "Intolerable Cruelty" and especially their remake of a nasty Ealing Studios/Alec Guinness great age nicely. The latter boasts an ace up its sleeve: It's one of the few times since his young days when Tom Hanks actively tried to be funny. Dressed like Colonel Sanders and speaking molasses-like through a thick Foghorn Leghorn accent and a giant set of teeth, the Oscar god joins a rat pack of thieves sporting the Coens' goofiest-ever names: Marlon Wayans' Gawain McSam, J.K. Simmons' Garth Pancake, etc. Even when you can sense the Coens stooping to mainstream tastes, they manage to twist the jokes to their own, eccentric whims. Heck, even Simmons' Pancake enthusiastically babbling about IBS slays.

'QUEEN OF EARTH'

In "Listen Up Philip," filmmaker Alex Ross Perry showed off his considerable gifts for verbal abuse. His follow-up shows off his gifts for mood and unease. "Philip" supporting player Elisabeth Moss gets promoted to the front lines, playing a once-perky young woman unraveling after the death of her father and a nasty breakup. Shacking up in the rural New York getaway home of a longtime friend (Katherine Waterston), she goes from bad to worse. Full of creeping zooms and eerie close-ups, it looks like midnight movie fare. But it withholds all the genre goods, creating a horrified but sympathetic look at madness — with occasional Perry tough talk from Waterston and a peerlessly nasty Patrick Fugit.

'WORLD OF TOMORROW'

Stick figures standing against bold colors are par for the course in "World of Tomorrow." DON HERTZFELDT

One of last year's very best films, no matter the length (16 minutes), "World of Tomorrow" is the latest (and newly Oscar-nominated) from Don Hertzfeldt, the stick figure maven whose work — "Rejected," "The Meaning of Life," the feature-length "It's Such a Beautiful Day" — is equal parts hilarious and depressing. Here, he imagines a deep future — told with retina-searing colors and smudgy lines — where a third-generation clone uses time travel to impart wisdom upon her original. Unfortunately, she's a little girl, and she doesn't get much out of downer talk about decaying bodies and failed love. You'll laugh and you'll cry, usually at the same time.

Chef Jacques La Merde says he's obviously an East Coaster

The VERY ANONYMOUS Instagram-famous chef will reveal his identity.

RACHEL RACZKA
@rachelraczka
rachel.raczka@metro.us

The ever-mysterious Chef Jacques La Merde — an anonymous chef who meticulously plates fine dining interpretations made from junk food on Instagram, @chefjacqueslamerde — is ready to reveal himself, and he's bringing the bro-est of bros with him.

The chef, whose name essentially translates to "jack s—," will be stepping into the kitchen with an all-star cast of chefs at Puritan and Co. in Boston for his "Most Soigne Dinner Ever" with owner Chef Will Gilson on Jan. 28. The dinner coincides with the broadcast of the eighth episode of this season of Bravo's "Top Chef," on which the chef's secret identity will be publicly revealed following a quickfire challenge.

Deemed a "smart shtick" by Vogue.com and "brilliant" by Eater, La Merde's aggressively excited captions and expert "New Nordic" plating techniques has earned him some 91,000 Instagram followers, most of whom we're confident are dying to know his true identity.

But despite our aggressive, all-caps questioning in Comic Sans, he still remains a mystery to us.

Why are you coming out? Why now? Why Boston? ISN'T IT OBVIOUS IM AN EAST COASTER? COME ON BROS, IM CLEARLY WOUND WAY TOO TIGHT TO BE FROM ANYWHERE ELSE!!!! LOVE BOSTON,

I THINK ITS A GREAT CITY, W/ A DYNAMIC FOOD SCENE AND AN INCREDIBLE ROSTER OF CHEF-TALENT. ALSO THE FISHES ARE DELICIOUS!!!! WHEN WE FIRST STARTED TALKIN ABOUT DOIN A DINER TO COINCIDE W/ A REVEAL ON TOP CHEF, THERE RILY WASN'T ANY OTHER PLACE I WANTED TO DO IT.

What's your relationship with the chefs that are participating in this event?

THE THING ABOUT BEIN A CHEF, IS THAT A CERTAIN FRATERNITY DEVELOPS, THAT GOES BEYOND ACTUALLY "HAVING MET SOMEONE." I'M COOKING W/ AN AMAZIN LINEUP, AND WHILE SOME OF THESE GUYS I'VE KNOWN FOR YEARS, OTHERS I ONLY KNO THROUGH OUR SPIRITUAL-CHEF CON-NECTION.

Will you mingle with guests?

ONCE THE FOOD LEAVES THE PASS, ALL THE CHEFS WILL BE COMIN OUT TO MEET GUESTS, ANSWER ANY QUESTIONS AND GIVE OUT HIGH FIVES!!! I CAN'T SAY FOR CERTAIN YET, BUT I'M PRETTY SURE WE'RE BRINGING IN A SMOKE MACHINE, AND WE'LL BE BASICALLY BLASTING JOURNEY AND HAVING AN EPIC TIME!!!

What should the world know about your reveal? Will you continue the Instagram account?

U KNO WUT I AM MOST PROUD OF? THAT I TOUCHED SO MANY PPL W/ MY FOOD THIS YEAR. I WANT YOU ALL TO KNOW, I'M NOT DONE TOUCHIN YOU YET!!!! THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING!!!!

An expert guide to hacking the bar experience

New year, new you, new love. Sounds great, but sometimes the only thing harder than putting yourself out there is deciding where to go. Allow us to present a radical idea: the bar.

"The after-work bar scene is great because everybody wants to unwind. They want to talk to someone, it's just so easy," says Susan Baxter, whose HireAWingWoman.com service pairs men and women with a "professional plus-one" to meet new people. "People can be somewhat vulnerable or more open to conversation."

A bar gets you in the meeting-people mindset, more so than going to an event and hoping that something happens.

Ironically, they also offer the opportunity for instant connection in a way online dating doesn't. "Until you meet someone in person, you don't know what kind of chemistry you have," Baxter points out.

Convinced? Give bars another try with these expert tips.

Bars can be a great place to meet someone — with the right approach. ISTOCK

Do your research

"Make friends with the bartender," Baxter advises. "Go maybe once or a couple times a week — the bartender gets to see who the characters are, they may know who's single, who the alcoholics are. Who knows? They could even set you up."

Go where the fun is

Look for bars with games like darts or pool tables for a low-stress way to chat up someone rather than staring into each other's eyes and drinking your cocktails too fast. At more casual bars, "people tend to be a little bit more open and talkative to other people than the people they came with," Baxter says. She also likes breweries and Mexican restaurants, which by the nature of their fun drinks and upbeat music tend to attract happy people.

Wear something versatile

"You should wear what flatters you," Baxter says. "There are so many rules out there that say, 'Wear red, it attracts men.' I look like crap in red!" She describes the ideal look as "chameleon" — like you can have fun in different scenarios. If you go with a dressy top, skew casual on the bottom. Ladies, go easy on the makeup and jewelry, and leave your highest heels at home.

Stand down, squad

You're way more approachable if you're either by yourself or with one other person, says Baxter. More people mean more obstacles, and someone may not approach to avoid interrupting your event.

Pick the right bar

If going to a bar alone sounds intimidating, find one where anyone would be happy to talk to you. "Try hotel bars," says Baxter. "It's such a good place to practice breaking the ice." The traveler gets your insider info, you get to talk about something other than your job or commute. Win-win! EVA KIS

Belichick becomes a relative softy during this time of year

January is when Patriots players finally feel the love.

MATT BURKE
@burke_metro
matthew.burke@metro.us

Bill Belichick is the type of coach that works his team harder after a win than a loss. There are no "days off" under a Belichick-led team and praise is extremely hard to come by. In fact, most Patriots players can remember the exact moment when Belichick first told them that they did a "good job."

"Last year against Oakland," Matthew Slater told The Wall Street Journal earlier this year. "He said, 'Good job, Slater.' You're surprised by it, but he's not going to be drooling over you."

Rob Ninkovich is another Patriots player who remembers the exact setting when he finally felt the hooded love.

"Jacksonville, 2009," Ninkovich told WSJ. "I made a play, the next day he said, 'That's a good job.' It was a great feeling."

Daddy Belichick has proven to be a relative softy this time of year. In January, he seems to realize that he's been giving his players mostly negative feedback for six months and it might be some time for positive reinforcement.

"They're a physically and mentally tough team that works hard, that trains hard, that prepares hard and have met every challenge that I've put in front of them," Belichick said during the press conference of his life a year ago — the infamous Mona Lisa Vito speech that came in the most heated time period of the Deflategate scandal. "And I know that because I work them every day. This team was the best team of the AFC during the regular season. We won two games in the playoffs against two good football teams. Best team in the post-season. And that's what this team is. I know that because I've been with them every day and I am proud of this team."

New year, new love was nearly as glowing. It truly is a rare occasion when BB goes into proud papa mode.

"Those guys, we demand a lot out of them," Belichick said. "This is a hard place to play. It's from the first day of spring OTAs all the way through training camp all the way through meetings. We're over 100 practices now this year. That doesn't count the walk-throughs and the meetings and everything else. Those are just the actual practice practices. You know it's definitely a grind, but they come in here, like this group, and I've said this the last couple of years, too, these guys come in here every day, their pencils are sharpened, they're sitting right there in those seats, they're ready to go, they're attentive, they want to learn, they want to know how to get better, they want to compete and they just do that on a daily basis. That's been week after week and year after year. It's really a great credit to those guys. We have some great competitors on our team

Broncos going all Rex Ryan on Patriots

The Broncos are taking an anti-Patriots approach to Sunday's AFC title game as defensive lineman Antonio Smith told a reporter that it was "an accurate statement" as to whether or not Tom Brady was a "crybaby." "I've never seen any quarterback look to the referee right after he gets sacked more than Brady," Smith said, according to the Colorado Springs Gazette. "Everytime he gets sacked he looks at the ref like, 'You see him sack me? Was that supposed to happen? He did it a little hard. Please throw a 15-yard penalty on him. Get him fined.'"

— obviously [Tom] Brady and [Julian] Edelman and [Rob] Gronkowski and [Sebastian] Vollmer and [Patrick] Chung and [Devin] McCourty, [Dont'a] Hightower, [Jamie] Collins, Chandler [Jones], those guys on the other side of the ball, too, Stephen Gostkowski. Those guys, you just can't say enough about them."

Northern exposure

The Celtics (22-20) will be in Canada tonight to take on the Raptors (7:30 p.m., CSNNE). Toronto has the second-best record in the Eastern Conference, owning a 26-15 mark. GETTY IMAGES

When Should I Begin Regular Mammograms?

For women weighing when to start having regular mammograms for early detection of breast cancer, the answer isn't always clear.

The American Cancer Society (ACS) recommendations, which were updated in October 2015, specify that women aged 45-54 who are at average risk should undergo yearly mammograms, and every two years for women age 55 and older. Women age 40-44, the ACS says, should have the option to start annual mammograms if they chose to do so.

However, the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommends that average risk women begin mammograms at age 50, and continue every two years until age 74. The guidelines, which were updated in January 2016, provide some flexibility for women age 40-49, leaving the decision to the individual doctor and patient and emphasizing the importance of patient preference.

"While either approach is reasonable, the Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Breast Program endorses the ACS recommendations," says Eric Winer, MD, director of the Breast Oncology Program at the Susan F. Smith Center for Women's Cancers at Dana-Farber. "But again, we must highlight the importance of the individual doctor and patient discussion regarding a woman's risk of breast cancer and the risks and benefits of screening."

What both the ACS and the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommendations agree on is the importance of individualized treatment and the ability for women to begin screening at age 40 if they and their doctor feel it will help reduce their risk for developing breast cancer.

"In general, women at increased risk should begin screening at 40 (or earlier in some cases) and should be having annual mammograms," Winer says.

"Besides the well-known cancer-susceptibility genes BRCA1 and BRCA2, inherited abnormalities in an array of other genes can also raise breast cancer risk. Women who have had certain benign breast conditions may be at an increased risk as well, as may women with a family history of breast cancer. Women with gene mutations that predispose them to breast cancer typically begin regular screening at an early age, which usually involves breast MRI in addition to mammography. For other women who are at high risk, routine screening mammography may not be sufficient, and other approaches, including MRI screening, are being studied."

LASIK & Beyond

Taking Human Sight To The Next Level

At New England Eye Center, we truly are taking sight to the next level. Thanks to recent advances in laser and lens implant technology, our highly-trained specialists are helping patients of all ages enjoy the type of clearer, more natural vision they desire. Vision for the way we live here in New England!

From our all-laser, bladeless LASIK procedure – to exciting developments like our Visian Implantable lens - our commitment to leading edge technology is surpassed only by our dedication to personalized patient care. Patients of New England Eye Center find confidence in knowing we offer experience you can trust and technology you can rely on.

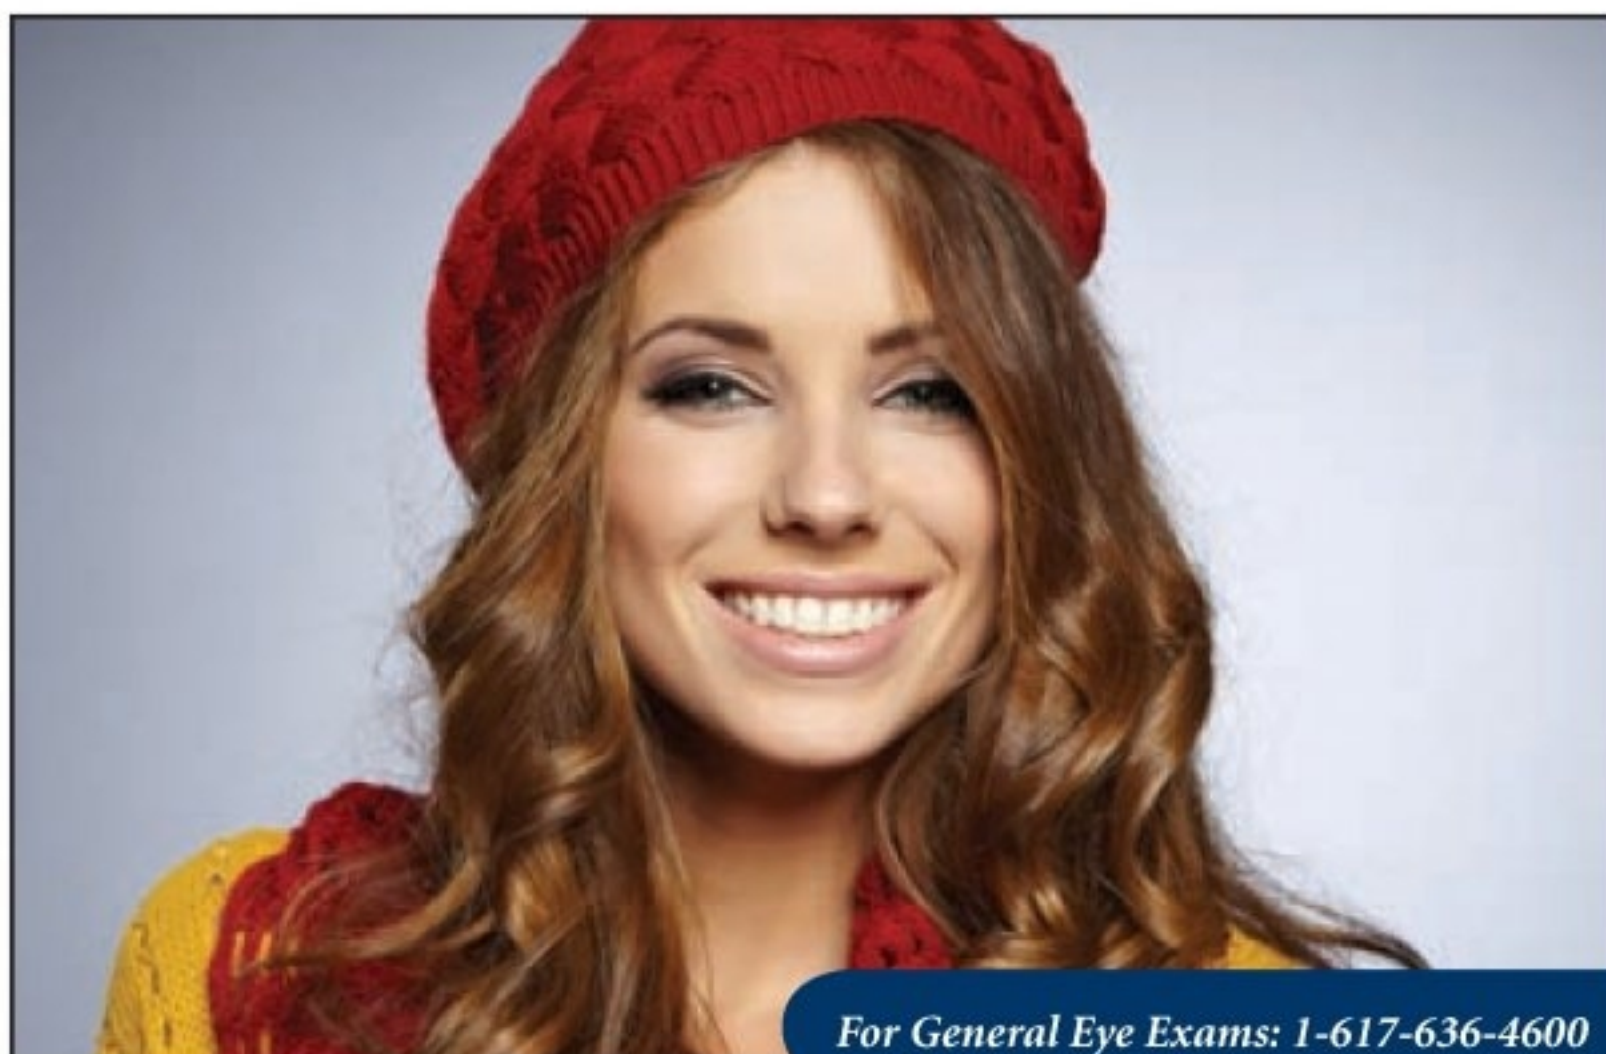

NASA-Approved LASIK - Our all-laser, bladeless LASIK at New England Eye Center has greatly improved results and helped take the fear out of having LASIK. The vast majority of our LASIK and PRK patients now achieve 20/20 vision at distance without glasses or contact lenses. Our method of LASIK is the same type approved for NASA astronauts and military pilots.

Implantable Contact Lens - New England Eye Center is among a select group of practices in the country offering patients the benefits of the Visian Implantable Collamer Lens (ICL). Unlike LASIK, the Visian corrects vision by inserting a delicate intraocular lens-like device atop the eye's natural lens, which is why the Visian is also referred to as the 'Implantable Contact Lens.' All of the refractive surgeons at New England Eye Center are qualified and experienced in performing this brief outpatient procedure to insert the Visian ICL. Because no corneal or other tissue is removed in the Visian ICL procedure, visual recovery is extremely rapid and the ICL can potentially be replaced if the eye's focus changes over time.

Refractive Lens Exchange - If you're frustrated with reading glasses and bifocals, our refractive specialists perform a procedure known as Refractive Lens Exchange. By replacing your eye's aging natural lens with a Intraocular Lens Implant customized specifically for your visual needs - and your lifestyle - allowing you to see better, look younger and never have to worry about developing cataracts!

Laser Cataract Surgery - For seniors experiencing changes in their vision – or who have been diagnosed with a cataract – New England Eye Center is turning the dream of Laser Cataract Surgery into reality. We are currently among only the top 3% of practices in the country to offer patients the added precision and accuracy of Laser Cataract Surgery using OptiMedica® Catalys™ Precision Laser System.

This year, take your vision to the NEXT LEVEL by giving yourself or a loved one the Gift of Sight. Now that's a Gift that keeps on Giving. A blessed New Year from the surgeons and staff of New England Eye Center.

New YEAR, New VISION, New YOU!

MORTGAGEE'S NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain Mortgage given by Sweets Smith to Sovereign Bank, dated May 24, 2004 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds at Book 34653, Page 204; of which Mortgage the undersigned is the present holder for breach of the conditions of said Mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing same will be sold at Public Auction at 2:00 PM on February 10, 2016 at 24-26 Hopkins Street, Boston (Dorchester), MA, all and singular the premises described in said Mortgage, to wit:

The land, with the buildings thereon, situated in that part of Boston called Dorchester, and being shown as Lot A, on a plan of land in Dorchester, drawn by John H. Burroughs, Civil Engineer, dated July 31, 1920, recorded Suffolk Registry of Deeds in Book 4251, Page 590, and same being subdivision of Lot 22 on a plan drawn by W. O. Badger, Surveyor, recorded Suffolk Registry of Deeds in Book 1744, Page 338, and another small parcel whole being bounded: NORTHWESTERLY by Hopkins Street, fifty-two (52) feet; NORTHEASTERLY by land of Isaacson through Lot 23 on Badger Plan, fifty and 99/100 (50.99) feet; SOUTHERLY by Lot 8 on Burroughs plan by two courses, thirty-one and 54/100 (31.54) feet and thirty two (32) feet; SOUTHWESTERLY by Hopkins Street, thirty-one and 17/100 (31.17) feet. Said Lot A contains, according to the Burroughs Plan, 2,291 square feet of land. Hereby conveying the same premises conveyed to me by deed of Simon Smith and Carol Brayboy dated January 27, 1998 and recorded February 2, 1998 with Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 22118, Page 116. On information and belief, the Northeasterly bound should read "fifty and 99/100 (50.99) feet", not (560.99) feet.

Aries Get into the game by making improvements that will update your look and add to your qualifications. Pushing your way to the top will take both talent and presentation skills.

Taurus You'll discover a rich lode of information if you talk to someone who has experienced something you want to pursue first-hand. If you listen and learn, advancement will be yours.

Gemini Show your stuff, but don't make promises you cannot keep. Put your best foot forward and make a point to praise others who work as hard as you do.

Cancer Keep your secrets to yourself. Focus on what you can do to help others. A couple of thoughtful changes at home will improve a personal relationship.

Leo Your playful mood and actions will attract some people and repel others. Pick and choose who is best suited for collaboration before you embark on a new project.

Virgo Mix business with pleasure in order to get a much better sense of how you can find success. You can make a financial or residential move that improves your standard of living.

Libra Keep your thoughts to yourself if you want to avoid a debate with someone who will never see things your way. Nurture a relationship with a loved one. Take time for pampering.

Scorpio The more you do for others, the more you will get in return. You can make a difference if you bring about change to the way you live or act.

Sagittarius Focus on getting things done, instead of finding new things to do. You'll face emotional trouble if you evade issues or neglect to fulfill a promise. Offer love, not complaints.

Capricorn Believe in yourself and your ability to make things happen. What anyone else does doesn't matter, as long as you are happy with the results you get.

Aquarius Show your strengths and stand up and be counted, but know when to back down and keep the peace. It's your ability to weigh your options that will lead to your success.

Pisces Don't allow indecisiveness to be your downfall. Look at the possibilities, but be realistic regarding how much you can actually accomplish. EUGENIA LAST
